FACULTY OF MILITARY SCIENCE AND OFFICER TRAINING
PRO PATRIA AD MORTEM!

The programme prepares professionals to participate in the activities and international relations of the defence and public service sector, particularly in cooperation with the security and defence policy bodies of NATO, the European Union, the UN and the OSCE.

Students gain in-depth knowledge of international security studies, strategic studies and defence studies, including the military and non-military dimensions of security and defence policy. The programme develops the skills needed to analyse and assess international and domestic security challenges, risks and threats, and to apply strategic planning, analysis and assessment methods.

Graduates are prepared to work as international organisers and liaison officers, experts, analysts, strategic planners and decision-makers in organisations dealing with security and defence policy.
